FORTY PEOPLE GUARANTEE CHAUTAUQUA COURSES FOR 1923

BELIEVING IN VALUE OF ENTERTAINMENT, THEY GO ON AS GUARANTORS

Forty representative men and women of Las Cruces are guarantors for the next year's chautauqua. This means that this splendid course of lectures and fine entertainment is thoroughly appreciated in Las Cruces. The names of the signers who will constitute the committee and put this thing across in 1923 are as folows:

George W. Frenger, S. S. Hookland, J. W. Lowe, T. J. Graham, Dr. H. L. Kent, L. E. Strand, Mrs. Katie Reymond, H. H. Brook, E. C. Crapps, F. L. Delvin, Mrs Mary Islas, N. M. Smith, B. R. Anderson, W. F. Gray, E. C. Wade, B. G. Dyne, Numa C. Frenger, E. C. Otwell, Mrs Henry Stoes, Charles Hill, C. F. Knight, D. W. Morgan, Dr T. C. Sexton, Mrs O. Mc Bride Fleming-Jones, Rio Grande Republic, V. B. May, L. H. Hauter, Mrs Herbert Yeo, Rev. H. J. Reemtsma, Geo. R. Quessenberry, Harold Scott, Eckert Stablein, Mrs A. M. Branigan, Dr. O. H. Brown, H. M. Duck, Frank A. Hawley, A. Katzenstein, M. C. O'Hara, Prof. G. B. Jones, Prof. D. S. Robbins.

The "road" chautauqua idea grew from the stationary institution of this name founded by Bishop Vincent at Lake Chautauqua, New York, in 1874. The excellent quality of the programs rendered and the good time the occasion afforded brought thousands of people from all parts of the country there each year for recreation and inspiration. From this there came a demand to have the benefits of such institution brought to the people and in answer to this call twenty different chautauqua bureaus are now annually giving their programs in more than seven thousand towns.

The Radcliffe Chautauqua, which has its headquarters at Washington, D. C., it is said, is the largest of these organizations. Starting in 1914 with seventy-seven towns, it has enjoyed a constant growth until it now covers forty-four states and 1421 towns. Its educational lectures and sparkling concerts now reach three million people annually in nine thousand audiences.

It has been argued by a few that the system upon which the Chautauqua operates is wrong It should not require the guarantee of cost by the community or the cooperation of its people, but should come in here like a show would or other sensational entertainment and depend on patronage through its own efforts and advertising. A little reflection will soon reveal the impracticability of such a plan for an educational institution. The system adopted by the Radcliffe Bureau, which is, in the main, the plan adopted by all chautauqua work, is a guarantee of excellence and the employment of high class talent which is now again available for work of this kind.

The Radcliffe system is organized into eleven circuits. Each circuit has its advance agent, its junior worker, its director, and general overseer. In addition, a general critic is employed whose business it is to go from circuit to circuit, listen to the programs as rendered, remove talent which does not measure up to the requiremnts, and replace it with talent that does. In this way, a maximum efficiency is maintained. It may be noted that the same talent is not used on the circuit a second time unless demand is made therefor by several circuit towns. The last entertainment was highly appreciated by the large audiences in attendance and was one of the best thus far given.

It is the plan of the committee to begin at once to organize for next year. A meeting will be called at an early date for that purpose. On account of the poor acoustics of the Armory, the question of holding next year's chautauqua in the regulation tent is being agitated. This change would undoubtedly add to the attraction.

LARGE CONGREGATION TAKE PART IN FIRST SERVICE IN CHURCH

"ST. MARY'S-AT-HILL" IS BEAUTIFUL EDIFICE ERECTED BY EPISCOPALIANS

In spite of the severe storm that raged on Sunday many pepole from El Paso and Las Cruces went to Hill to join with people of that community in opening the new church, recently completed by the Episcopalians of that district.

The church was full of people who listened intently to the song service and the sermon by Bishop Howden. A class of nine was confirmed by the bishop assisted by Rev. Hunter Lewis, rector in charge, and Rev. Edw. S. Doan, rector of St. Andrews, Las Cruces. The baptisms had been made the previous Wednesday.

In his remarks, Bishop Howden in discussing St Mary's-at-Hill, took occasion to commend those in charge of the planning and construction for the gem of architecture they had evolved, stating that the type of building was most beautiful and churchly and would stand for many years as a monument to the artistic taste of the people of Hill. He said that the most cursory examination showed that the church had been constructed in no hap-hazzard manner, but that each stone had been laid with purpose and the completed effect was extremely beautiful.

During the services Dr. O. H. Brown and Mrs Robert West sang the duet "Forever With the Lord," and Mrs. Dean sang "I Come to Thee," by Caro Roma. These musical numbers were highly appreciated.

Mrs Dean's charming voice was at its best and she held her audience entranced throughout the solo.

The church edifice follows the purest Gothic style and is entirely constructed of the native rubble stones secured in the vicinity, many of the rocks being carried by the women of Hill. Old English ivy has been planted around the building, and in a few years St. Marys-at-Hill will present an appearance of age and beauty that will attract the admiring attention of every passerby.

FROST BADLY DAMAGES PEACHES, APRICOTS AND PLUMS

FROST DOES LITTLE DAMAGE TO PEARS AND LATE APPLES

At the present time the principal part of the fruit crop of the Mesilla Valley, that is, the varieties that are shipped annually in large quantities, is safe. If there are no more freezes there will be a good crop.

This is the opinion of several of the big orchard owners given to the Republic this (Thursday) morning

R. L. Young, owner of a big apple orchard, states that several very early varieties of apples, notably the Jonathan, have been severely hit, estimating that of his Jonathans fully 50 per cent are ruined. The later varieties of apples, later than usual this spring, are so far safe from damage. Mr. Young is confident of a big crop of apples.

Theo. Rousnit believes that so far his peaches are safe, after examination Wednesday afternoon.

It is said that an examination of the peach trees on the McDowell place revealed that they were not seriously damaged. However, it is the opinion of the Horticultural Department of the College that the peach and apricot crop is practically gone, though here and there orchards and trees have escaped the blight.

Smudging was carried on at the Horticultural Farm Tuesday during the coldest hours.

Bartlett-Pears Undamaged

H. H. Hookland, the largest grower of Bartlett pears, says the crop so far has escaped serious damage and if no more serious frosts attack us there will be a big crop.

For two hours Tuesday morning the mercury touched 23 degrees above, following a cold north wind that came domn from the snow fields of Colorado and northern New Mexico.

Wednesday was soft and balmy and the wind in the southwest.

ST. LOUIS CONCERN WANTS TO LEND $500,000

ASKS CHAMBER OF COMMERCE IF FARMERS NEED ANY MONEY TO FINANCE CROP PRODUCTION IN DONA ANA COUNTY.

John Bingham Will Go to St. Louis to Confer With Corporation About Placing Large Sums Here to Assist In Developing Valley Lands.

"Dona Ana county certainly is in the public eye," commented C. F. Knight, president of the Chamber of Commerce, last Monday evening, when John Bingham read a telegram from a financial corporation in St. Louis, Mo., inquiring as to the opportunity to loan $500,000 on producing farm land in this district.

Mr. Bingham and M. B. Stevens were delegated to prepare a telegram, setting forth the facts in regard to openings in the county for the placing of loans at a fair rate of interest. Mr. Bingham who is going east on a business trip in a few days, will stop off at St. Louis to give the representatives of the corporation more complete details about this district.

"The financial outlook in the county is bright," Mr. Knight said. "I am told that the Mesilla Farm Loan association, headed by H. H. Brook, has applications for loans aggregating $225,000, of which amount $150,000 has already been approved by the board. It is expected that John N. Kerr of Denver, engineering appraiser for the Federal Land bank at Wichita, Kans., will be here in a short time to make the final appraisal of approved farm land in this county."

Mr. Knight suggested that a movement be put under way to invite every merchant of the various towns in Dona Ana county to join the Las Cruces Chamber of Commerce.

"In cooperation with the Elephant Butte Irrigation District and the Dona Ana County Farm Bureau we are engaged in a big work," Mr. Knight said, "and, as the work is district-wide, we feel that the merchants in the towns outside of Las Cruces should be represented.

"The El Paso Chamber f Commerce is going as far north as Anthony in its membership drive. That is excellent work. We can do as well, I believe, by extending our membership to all parts of the county."

Clarence J. Smith, chairman of the auditing committee, which includes Nathan I. Reiter and Fred Lemon, presented the report of the audit of the Chamber's books for the period from April 1, 1921 to April 5, 1922.

"Your committee takes pleasure in commending your treasurer, M. B. Stevens, on his custodianship of the records," the committee said in its report. "His books are well kept and are in balance."

On motion of R. P. Porfer and B. Frank Weisenhorn the audit committee's report was accepted for file, and a vote of thanks was passed to Messrs. Smith, Reiter and Lemon for their prompt and careful work.

The report of the nominating committee, headed by L. A. Broaddus, announcing 14 names, from which the seven receiving the largest number of votes at the election, called for May 16, will be directors for the ensuing term, was read. On motion of R. P. Porter and M. B Stevens the report was adopted. The secretary was instructed to send a list of the nominees to the entire membership of the Chamber.

The matter of making a determined effort to interest one of the big denominational bodies of the United States in Las Cruces as the place to establish a sanatorium was discussed at length, and it was decided to go ahead with the plan.

Fred S. Hess reported that Mrs. L. M. Rogers is ready to ship her equipment from Tucson, Ariz., for the pavilion sanatorium for the treatment of tuberculosis to be established here.

Indigestion

Many persons, otherwise vigorous and healthy, are bothered occasionally with indigestion. The effects of a disordered stomach on the system are dangerous, and prompt treatment of indigestion is important. "The only medicine I have needed has been something to aid digestion and clean the liver," writes Mr. Fred Ashby, a McKinney, Texas, farmer. "My medicine is for indigestion and stomach trouble of any kind. I have never found anything that touches the spot like Black-Draught. I take it in broken doses after meals. For a long time I tried pills, which griped and didn't give the good results. Black-Draught liver medicine is easy to take, easy to keep, inexpensive."

THE WOMAN WARMAKER.

IT WAS an ill-fated ship which brought a wonderfully beautiful Italian girl to England, toward the close of the Seventeenth century. But no one who saw this ivory-skinned, dark-eyed beauty, would have thought that she was to plunge England into a period of bloodshed. So her destiny proved, for Mary of Modena was the embodiment of bad luck to England. She came over from Italy as the betrothed bride of the Duke of York. In the course of a few years he ascended the throne as James II, although at the time of his marriage no one could have foreseen that event. James was a bad king, and what is perhaps worse, he was a weak king. The people muttered against him, and his wife, Mary of Modena, urged that he flee. James hesitated, and he presently was dethroned. William of Orange taking his place. Immediately James' followers banded together in what was called the Jacobite uprisings, this being a play on the Latin name for James, which is Jacobus.

Mary, watching events from France, paid her court to Louis XIV. She is said to have caught the fancy of the gallant Louis and to have persuaded him to declare her son the true king of England, instead of William. Louis assented and a new war promptly began, much worse than the civil conflict which had preceded it in England. William succeeded in gaining allies when Louis declared his own grandson to be king of Spain. Soon the War of the Spanish Succession was in its full red tide and Europe ran with blood. The struggle lasted 14 years and before it ended practically every nation of the continent was drawn in. Armies were wiped out, furious battles won and lost. Prince Eugene, insulted by a slight of Louis, went to Austria and inflicted heavy defeats on the French, becoming the greatest military leader Austria ever had—and he was a Frenchman. Marlborough won battle after battle for England and undying fame for himself. Louis' ablest leader died and France just escaped falling into the clutches of her enemies.

Mary, the maker of wars, had well earned the name. But she still was unsatisfied, and when peace finally came she used all of her blandishments to stir up new Jacobite troubles in England. The Jacobite rebellions dragged on for a number of years. But they were hopeless, for William had firmly seated himself on the throne. Still Mary kept on with the resolution of despair and not until her death in 1718 could the English king breathe easy.

ALONE FOR EIGHTEEN YEARS

Indian Woman, Abandoned on Desert Island, Finally Found by Party of Otter Hunters.

On San Nicholas island, which is uninhabited, a party of sea-otter hunters, landing to chance their luck, found, to their amazement, the imprint of human feet on the sandy shore—imprints freshly made. They scattered in search. But, the wind shifting and commencing to blow hard, they had to regain their vessel before the maker of the marks could be found. It was undeniable, however, a human being lived on this bleak, wind-blown island of sand and tall brushwood.

On returning to the mainland they reported the strange discovery, but nothing was done until a Roman Catholic priest was so moved by the news that he persuaded the captain of a small schooner to sail with him for San Nicolas. After two days' searching he discovered this lonely Crusoe—the first of a new kind. For he found inside a low hut of driftwood a woman more like a beast than a person.

She was clad in otter skins, and the feathered skins of the sea-fowl, and her companion was an otter, which she had caught very young and tamed.

The priest with difficulty got her story, for she had almost forgotten how to speak. Many years previously the small tribe of Indians to which she belonged—inhabitants of San Nicolas from time past—had been shifted by the government to the mainland. As they were being taken on board, her baby had fallen into the sea, and she had leaped after him, and in the dusk had been given up as drowned. She reached the shore, however, to find the child was dead. In utter loneliness she had lived there for 18 years.

NO RELIEF EVEN IN DEATH

Profiteering Claimed to Have Spread to the Undertaker and the Cemetery Manager.

Exploitation even at the side of the grave! Birth has long been regarded as a costly occasion, sometimes the occasion of profiteering. Diseases during infancy afford further opportunities for taking advantage of people's ignorance. Child labor and other ills seize upon the youth almost before he enters adolescence, and fraudulent schemes of education may carry him into maturity. Adult life, of course, is a long stretch of abuses. Our food, our shelter, our clothes, our leisure—somewhere we are almost certain to pay the penalty of living; many of us even regard ourselves as underpaid. If we attempt to fly from these demands of exorbitancy the loan shark grins outside the door. Old age creeps upon us with leering malevolence. From the cradle onward we are harried. And now comes death to add its finishing touch of trickery, writes Winthrop D. Lane in the Literary Review of Quincy L. Dowd's "Funeral Management and Costs." St. Paul's question has been answered. The sting of death lies in its cost; the victory of the grave belongs to the undertaker and the cemetery manager. "We bargain for the graves we lie in."

Americans Killed With Escadrille.

There were twelve young Americans who gave up their lives for France while flying with the Lafayette escadrille or squadron. To perpetuate their names and memory a memorial tablet was modeled by a French artist at Sevres, France, in 1919, and executed under the direction of Sidney B. Veit, secretary of the foreign service committee of the Aero Club of America. The Lafayette squadron won imperishable fame by its success in aerial combats with enemy planes, of which no fewer than 100 were brought down by this organization alone. The names on the tablet: Norman Barclay, Julian Biddle, Andrew Courtney Campbell, Jr., Oliver Chadwick, Victor Chapman, Edmond Genet, Ronald Hoskier Douglas McMonigal, James McConnel, Norman Prince, Kiffin Rockwell.

Richest Americans.

An investigation of millionaires by a New York newspaper correspondent includes the following as among the richest Americans: John D. Rockefeller, George F. Baker, Henry Ford, Mrs. E. H. Harriman, the Wideners, George Eastman, J. B. Duke, Pierre S. Dupont, Julius Rosenwald, Vincent Astor, Edward H. R. Green, J. Ogden Armour, the Vanderbilts, Thomas Fortune Ryan, Daniel Guggenheim, the Harknesses, Louis F. Swift, Charles M. Schwab, Cyrus H. McCormick, J. P. Morgan, the Bradys, E. T. Stotesbury, the Pratts, the Dodge estate, Andrew W. Mellon.

Whale of a Fish Story.

"It's a whale," more than one visitor asserted who visited Monk's wharf here recently. They were wrong. It was a sturgeon. From the tip of its tail to its snout it measured just 13 feet, and it weighed 988 pounds. This monster fish was taken with a drift net in the Pitt river by an Indian fisherman, and is said to be the second largest ever taken.—New Westminster Correspondence Toronto Globe.

Noah's Oversight.

"Don't forget to feed and water the canary birds," said Mrs. Meekton as she started for the train.

"I won't, Henrietta," replied Leonidas; "though I can't help wishing sometimes that Noah, when planning to perpetuate animal life, had decided to leave canary birds out of the ark."

THE VAMPIRE WHO STARTED PROFITEERING.

AFTER seizing half of France and leaving the conquered country to his lieutenants, Edward III returned to England toward the close of the Fourteenth century, the most powerful monarch which the nation had ever known. He had been long at the wars and was determined to let younger shoulders carry the burden. His mind was bent upon recreation, the rest and plenty so hardly won. His eye fell upon Alice Perrers. She probably was a servant about the palace, and was neither pretty nor talented. But she had a flattering tongue and the will which moves even walls. So it was not long until her name began to be linked with that of Edward. Then his wife died, the good Queen Philippa. Immediately Alice Perrers came into the full measure of her power.

This woman had one ruling passion—money. Edward was completely under her domination. She persuaded him to give her estates in 17 counties, many of them wrung from their rightful owners. She had herself appointed as "guardian" to wealthy orphans and rifled their property. Court offices were sold through her. She undertook to dictate even in the law courts, and actually sat upon the bench with crown judges to see that they decided in the way she sought.

The people groaned and a party began to gather around the Black Prince, son of Edward, who had come home from the wars abroad. In an unwise moment Alice had parliament summoned to vote new taxes. But the parliament rebelled and Edward, near his dotage, was forced to give up Alice, both agreeing that they would never meet again. Then the Black Prince died. Alice came back to the palace, more powerful than ever.

At this juncture she hit upon the idea of cornering certain imported luxuries, working through a merchant. The volume of commerce was comparatively small at that time. It was an easy matter to carry out her plans. So Alice became England's first profiteer and gained new wealth. The king was feeble and frequently near death, but Alice tenderly administered to him and by the very force of her own spirit kept him alive. In every direction she levied new exactions and the people were afraid to act. Scandal coupled her name with that of several men, but Edward would not believe her unfaithful. How far she might have gone it would be impossible to say had not the king's failing health reached a crisis.

At last, when Alice saw that her time had run its course, she left Edward to die alone. But not until she had removed the rings from the fingers of this king, whose deeds had resounded through all the world, only to become the prey of a servant girl who was not even pretty.

Early Astronomical Instruments.

The earliest known astronomical instruments of German make have recently been described by Dr. J. Hartman of Gottingen. They belonged to the philosopher and astronomer, Cardinal Nikolaus of Cusa, who lived from 1401 to 1464, and comprised a "torquetum," for measuring the longitude and latitude of the celestial bodies, an astrolabe and two celestial globes. A note has been found in the cardinal's own handwriting, stating that he purchased three of these instruments in the year 1444, together with 10 astronomical treatises, for the sum of 38 florins. Doctor Hartmann believes that at least two of the instruments were made by one Nikolaus Hybech of Erfurt, who was born in 1370.—Scientific American.

The Public Is Interested—

THERE are many problems affecting telephone service in the solution of which the public is directly concerned.

Telephone service is an intimate, vital factor in the commercial, industrial, professional and domestic life of the people.

The telephone has infinitely extended human efficiency. What were formerly the accomplishments of a lifetime are now completed in less than a decade through the aid of the telephone.

The demand for telephone service is continually increasing. To keep pace with this demand new plant must constantly be added—new equipment installed.

In other words, there must be a continual flow of capital into the telephone business if it is to fully meet the requirements of the public.

The general attitude of the public toward the Telephone Company will determine the attitude of capital toward such an investment.

The public is vitally interested.
