

for the woman. After found three huts made brush, and from where and an open plain. In the Nidever's the object of the woman's dream was feathers, and her hair masses from her bare covered, she was cutting which she had killed, visitor she received him festation of delight and ation him to his boat. for her to enter it and Nidever's sail for the bay, chairs to the bay, and Santa Barbara
created great excite-called at Nidever's

Although she could not than 60 years old, she was emaciated. Her expres-

It may seem, consider-very short time she had intelligible to all. Those themselves masters of nature could not under-that she said. Owing to the way of her hermitage was that became of the child the boat to find on that is a matter of pure contingency lived and where it facts that could not be woman appeared to have instincts, and to every made no answer that could in three months after her and was buried by the of the Central Methodist introductory remarks last and himself to the crying "ranger" to saloons. The engaged, with an unusually son, eagerly waiting to aular speaker.

h the recent tragedy of the speaker, in carefully e, rehearsed just enough the revolting murder to as it were, for what he

He had never read of horrible in the White- nor did he believe that Dr. Jekyll and Mr. Hyde" a more horrible crime admitted in our midst in

Dr. Griffen, he said, of "side ad- grates, where women are ad-ny with men. From starned that there were over the lives of the city. There higher number of these unsknowable number of no frequent places with for base ends.

we have before us," con- ability both married and places.

to do about it? The press and upon that source we protection. Every man who other than the proper ones are protected, and let them in closing the side en- they are affording that cannot tell the extent of one such horrible crime as killing is revealed to the gentleman felt constrained language of Dr. Mackenzie to the death of Mrs. the lives of this woman it, uax not have been."

well at length upon the rail way and with all the language at his command.

the congregation several applause.

WITH THE SCREENS.

Under Spanish on the Evil side Entrance.

Inside Christian Church last A. Gardner, as a prelude to take on the subject of "Isto saloons. He said that Mrs. Griffes was the im-of one of the greatest reretaken in San Francisco. or in which the press had as well as we could be no as suppressed.

The daily papers of a city in denouncing a nuisance sured it will go. Would to the press, and against then would the army of to fight and righteous-nd."

ing the press for the grand Gardner said that the be suppressed everywhere boys would have some promebars were exposed to boys who now were the danger of the testimony that had already the reverend gentleman estimated that there were entrances" in the city, and was ruled each year to hell and left open, he here are now over 500 girls et crossed the line of im-in the next twelve months indiscreet faint of a dam-the city, and the opera-thoroughly aroused. Organ-put forth that will cer-victory. Since the death ate Mrs. Griffen thousands been filled with sympathy omen, and the condition of perilous by the 'ladies' nothing that would de-influences at work to save which is the only way it would be a good time to much greater peril of our room there are more than both side and front to private rooms behind the main and side windows are led down to hell Let us be anxious at just as anxious for our the "ladies entrance," put at the Beach restaurant,

the "ladies entrance," put the same time sweep away all from the front doors and prevent outsiders having a t is going on in the saloon Let us pray Almighty God to about the time when all bodes of the devil shall be then go out and work and swee your prayers."

FIRE RECORD.

Firing With Matches Again
Some Damage.
The burning of the room on box 217 the same room as the fire

112 Delavador street. The damage to the extent of caused by children playing Dr. Albert Abrams owns and yesterday afternoon ended from box 84 for a fire started in a vacant house at 53 N. 32nd and 42nd was also total loss being about $500. It is owned by Cliff Bros. No turning is assigned. From box 85 at 6:10 last evening by a fire in the vault in N. 32nd and 42nd at 42nd street. A clerk who was writing and opened the vault and lit rubber tube which was at caught fire and ignited pile of blank policies and paper. The loss was $25.

country has sprung into the rank of the oldest of Catholic lands and there is no more significance of Mgr. Stoll's mission. Although he came as a representative to the World's Fair, his primary purpose is a more permanent one.

With the ceremony here ended, the priests left the altar, and returning escorted Mgr. Stoll, robed in the splendor of his office. He ascended the Archbishop's throne and raised his hands in the immense congregation. The words of the Gospel, "I bless you," were soon said, but for a few moments there was a silence as cathedral as deep as if not a soul was left. Mgr. Stoll ascended the steps of the altar and the unobedient below.

TALK FROM-BELTNER FOR INDOMITIA BEFORE prayer; trial bottle, 10 cents.

It was soon announced that the train was returning to their old home town. They hurried out to meet the train and bid their welcome. James McGee, Patrick Schilly, M. and other old-timers anxious to see the train, were told to be on hand.

The train stopped at Seventh and Main. The train alighted. Mr. McGee was in the act of getting off the train suddenly started, and dragged by the steps and near his feet. His horror-stricken friends ran to his aid and picked him up. That one of his legs was broken, carried him to his home and suffered from the injury. Then a suit against the railroad caused heavy damages. The case lagged pursuant to agreement, and to look Chapman up for him. "I am going to be a ringster to Dr. Crosby, and as that while Chapman has sell him a ring, he had two weeks," I am informed left town with a woman whom I don't know much called at his room at the Theater and found that he very suddenly. We went home in East Oakland, seen him. He has gone doubt about that, but we all agree with my informant that Chapman is not to be but has not been living for some time past. His first Chapman is all right and to-day and account for his presence.

could not find him. The doctor told it was because he had been trying to see him but he had not seen him in some time. He said that he had named Brown, which about. We were told that he had left there to his father's but he has not. There is no will, catch him. The doctor told us that he was a married man, with his wife for hands in it that will be on hand singular disappear.

San Francisco, and "Where's the Money and Around There?"

The island was enacted the "Lost Woman of San Santa Barbara" is a history begins with the of Indians from San just, as they were encountered. Discovering left behind. Returned admonished by her coming obliged by a coming the mainland. It was soon as the weather passed away and the forgotten and left to er, a hunter named Santa Barbara, visited . While there he de-

112 Delavador street. The damage to the extent of caused by children playing Dr. Albert Abrams owns and yesterday afternoon ended from box 84 for a fire started in a vacant house at 53 N. 32nd and 4th was also total loss being about $600. The owners are the Claff Bros. No burning is anticipated. From box 85 at 6:10 last evening a fire in the vault in the Claff Bros. building at 421 N. 3rd. A clerk who was writing and opened the vault and lit rubber tube which was at caught fire and ignited pile of blank policies and papers. The loss was $25.

A FEMALE CRUSOE.

STORY OF THE LOST WOMAN OF SAN NICOLAS.

She Returned for Her Child and Spent Twenty Years on the Island.

The recent earthquake and electrical disturbances at San Nicolas island, near Santa Barbara, has revived interest in the story of the old Indian woman who led a Crusoe life on the island for many years and who was finally removed to Santa Barbara only to die from the effects of unaccustomed civilization. The following sketch of this female Crusoe is from "Santa Barbara and Around There" by Edward Roberts:

On the smallest island was enacted the tragedy of the "Lost Woman of San Nicolas," which at Santa Barbara is a familiar tale. The story begins with the removal of a number of Indians from San Nicolas in 1836. Just as they were embarking one of the women discovered that her child had been left behind. Returning for it, she was abandoned by her companions, who were obliged by a coming storm to set sail for the mainland. It was intended to return so soon as the weather permitted, but years passed away and the woman in time was forgotten and left to her fate.

Twenty years later, a hunter named George Nidever of Santa Barbara, visited the island for otters. While there he de-terminated to look for the woman. After careful search he found three huts made of whale-ribs and brush, and from where they stood extended an open plain, in the center of which Nidever saw the object of his journey. The woman's dress was made of skins and feathers, and her hair hung in tangled masses from her bare head. When discovered, she was cutting blubber from a seal which she had killed, but on seeing her visitor she received him with every manifestation of delight, and readily accompanied him to his boat. Signs were made for her to enter it, and on her doing so, Nidever sailed for the bay, and brought his charge to Santa Barbara.

Her arrival there created great excitement and hundreds called at Nidever's house to see her. Although she could not have been more than 50 years old, she was gray-haired and emaciated. Her expression was one of blank ignorance and her skin was dry and wrinkled. Her language, strange as it may seem, considering the comparatively short time she had been lost, was unintelligible to all. Those who considered themselves masters of every Indian tongue could not understand a word that she said. Owing to this fact the story of her hermitage was never known. What became of the child she returned from the boat to find on that fatal day in 1836 is a matter of pure conjecture. How long it lived and where it was buried were facts that could not be discovered. The woman appeared to have lost all human instincts, and to every question asked made no answer that could be understood. In three months after her rescue she died and was buried by the Mission fathers.

---