and, grand children, will not renounce neither. These nor hope."

The work is one of much power, but is localized so narrowly that it is impossible for it to have the world-wide interest of this author's greatest production.

THE ATTRACTIVE ISLES.

The Channel Islands of California, a Book for the Amateur, the Student and Tourist. By Charles Frederick Holder. With Nearly 150 Illustrations from Photographs, and Twelve Maps. Published by A. C. McClurg & Co., Chicago.

Surely this is a delightful book. The Channel Islands of California are the group along the coast from approximately latitude 31 to 35 degrees. The islands comprise the United States and northernmost group of the Ionian or Mediterranean and of Charleston and northern Georgia on the Atlantic coast. As the author says, "What Madeira, the Riviera, and the Azores are to Europe, the Channel Islands of California have become to the United States." The islands, in all, are visited annually by an army of pleasure-seekers and travelers not only from this country, but from all over the world—a contingent which will be augmented manifold as years go by, when the steamships, the motor yachts, and other vessels can easily reach this coast."

The author grows eloquent upon the beauties and attractiveness of these islands, and their facilities for good sport in fishing; for their perfect climate, "where in June to October, or for six months, the idler, angler, golfer, sportsman, or health-seeker will not experience a squall or rainstorm—comfortable, beautiful days following one another."

In speaking of the various sports available on the islands, he says that "golf, cocking, hunting, mountain climbing, and diversion for the botanist and archaeologist," are at hand; and of the sports, that "their fame has been made by the extraordinary sea-angling with rod and reel, the region being, apparently, the meeting ground of the great game fishes caught nowhere else, and many indigenous to the locality. Here is the leaping tuna, the long-finned tuna, the yellow-fin, the white sea bass, the leaping swordfish that leaps at night, the tarpon, the yellowtail and many more, and on one of which would make any place famous, and to catch some of which, scores of anglers cross the Atlantic and continent yearly." The title chapters of the work give a very good idea of the comprehensive knowledge of the subject the author says he has made no attempt to exhaust the subject; give a very good idea of thoroughness and detail with which he has pursued his work. These are, "The Channel Islands," "The Discovery of Cabrillo and Vizcaino," "The Local Fauna," "The Channel Islands," "The Isle of Summer," "Incidents in Tuna Fishing," "The Tuna Club and Its Branches," "A Remarkable Catch (Black Sea Bass)," "A Famous Coach Road," "The Small Game Animals," "The Island of San Clemente," "The Birds of the Islands," "Hunting the Wild Goat," "The Long-Finned Tuna," "The Ever-changing Island (Anacapa)," "The Animals of the Island," "Los Coronados and the Time Islands," "Ashore at the Wrong Time," "Yellow-bellied Noddy," "The Sand-dunes of the Islands," "Gardens of the Sea," "A Passing Island (San Nicolas)," "The Sea-Lion Rookeries," "The Island of the Sacred Cross (Santa Cruz)," "Wild Boar," "San Miguel," "Around Santa Rosa," "The Lost Woman of Santa Barbara," "The White Sea Bass," "The Amber Fish," "The Tameness of Animals," "The Pearls of the Islands," "The Order of the Islands," "How to Reach the Islands," "There is a good index which affords easy access to any part of the work desired. The book is especially rich in illustrations, and altogether it is perhaps the finest that has ever been presented of that charming and glorious region.

NEIGHBORHOOD STORIES.

Country Sketches. By Emery West. The Cochrane Publishing Company, New York.

Here is a series of little stories, "An Earnest Soul," "The Pretty Girl," "Her Beaux," "A Merry Widow," "The Candidate," "The Candidate." They are quite readable little sketches, written in simple style about ordinary people. The stories show an effort to get below the surface, to know the real life, thought, and experience of the people. Some of the sketches are humorous, but the great aim is to have the optimistic undertone, and well calculated to cheer those who read.

EXPERIENCE IN LIFE.

Progress from Experience. By Edward Selden Hyde. Published by Cochrane Publishing Company, New York.

This little book shows the progress of the author's mind as he comes in contact with industry, the maxim of the "survival of the fittest," with trusts and the tariff, with industry and the state, with the socialization of industry, with money and its offices, with Socialism in its relation to Christianity, with the various social tendencies, with religion, and with the Puritan succession. The author is a keen observer and analyst, and his little work is well worth reading.

SLANG OF THE FANS.

The Humming Bird. By Owen Johnson. Illustrated. Published by The Baker & Taylor Company, New York.

This is a diverting little book, in which the slang of the baseball field in its different manifestations and curiosities is well brought out. We have here, "Finnegan in the Glums," "The Cause of All the Trouble," "The Landing of the Finnegan," "The Finnegan and the Great American Epic," "The Apotheosis of Finnegan." These of these chapters shows forth a distinct phase of the baseball fever and the way in which the fans assimilate it into words and expressions. The language used may be called baseball speech for lack of a better term, and certainly no other could rightly describe it; but it is all very humorously and ingeniously done.

OUT OF THE OCCULT.

Problems of Your Generation. Published by The Arden Press, New York.

The preface of this work gives a very good idea of what it is, viz.: "We hope to present the truth in a form which will dispel doubt and uncertainty. The effort will be to prevent a lack of decision in the minds of those who read

Charles F. Holder, author of "The Channel Islands of California," published by McClurg & Co., is an authority on sea angling. He has fished everywhere and has established a code of ethics in angling that has done more to elevate sport in the nineteenth century than any one else. In his present book he describes the famous lost woman of San Nicolas, one of his trips being made to discover the home of this the strangest Crusoe of the century.
