BEWARE OF IMITATIONS!

AMERICAN COUNTERFEITS

OF HOLLOWAY'S PILLS AND OINTMENT. I may respectfully take leave to call the attention of the residents of Australia to the fact that Messrs. JAMES JOHNSON, of Sydney, have been authorised Agents in various parts and that their Travellers are sent over with IMITATIONS of my PILLS and Ointment, which they make up in their own way, and sell under labels of his trash. On the other hand, I am told that some of your people, you know, who do not care for New York, are attracted. Much of this fictitious stuff is sold in the Auction Rooms of Sydney as genuine, and readily finds its way to the back settlements. These are vile trades, as I do not allow any medicinal article to be put in any part of the United States: they are only made by me at 532 Oxford-street, London. The same people are circulating a report that my business is done in the City of London Company, which is utterly false. I most earnestly appeal to the sense of British justice, which I fear sure I may venture upon asking from my kind countrymen and countrywomen in their distant homes, to assist me, as far as lies in their power, in denouncing this shameful African trade, by cautioning their friends lest they be duped into buying villainous compounds styled "Holloway's Pills and Ointment," with any New York label thereon. Each Pot and Box of the Genuine Medicines bears the British Government Stamp, with the words "HOLLOWAY'S PILLS and Ointment." On the label is the name of the proprietor, which is the address, 532 Oxford-street, London, whereas those which are manufactured by "Sydney" or "Sydney" are sold at 532 Oxford-street, London, 1770.

A FEMALE CRUSOE.

THE San Francisco Call contains an interesting account of an Indian woman who was accidentally abandoned on San Nicolas Island, off the coast of Southern California, and spent eighteen years alone there before she was rescued. The fact of her existence was discovered by a man who went from the mainland to hunt for others, and who found footprints sunk deeply in the ground. He was able to follow up these indications for nearly three years, when one of a party who accompanied him came suddenly upon the object of their search. She was in a small circular enclosure made of brushwood, about 5ft. high and 6ft. in diameter, with a small opening on one side. She was clothed with a garment made of skins of the shag, a species of duck that can neither walk nor fly. This garment reached almost to her ankles when she stood erect. She was sitting cross-legged, skinning seal-blubber with a rude knife made of a piece of hoop iron driven into a piece of wood. There was no covering on piece of hoop iron driven into a piece of wood. There was no covering on her head, except a thick matted mass of hair, of yellowish-brown colour, probably owing to exposure to the sun and weather; it was, in short, as if the ends had rotted off. There were some wild dogs on the island, a few of which kept near her, and seemed to regard her as a mistress. She had lived on a plant resembling cabbage, called by Californians palo santo, and a root known by the name of coreomite, also blubber of the various kinds of seals, &c. She had a rude apparatus for catching shellfish, and strong fishing lines made of seal sinews, which seemed to indicate that she fished in the ocean. The expression of her face was pleasing, her features were regular, her complexion much fairer, and her form more symmetrical, than that of the Indian women on the adjoining mainland. Some suspect that she belonged to a tribe much further north. She could not understand anything said to her in any of the Indian dialects of South California; but she had a wonderful capacity for conversing by signs. She retained all her teeth, but they were worn low, supposed to be due to her chewing tough and hard articles of food. Her age appeared to be 50 years. She bowed to all who came near her, greeting them with a smile. She accompanied her discoverers to their vessel, but her conduct at once convinced them that she retained the virtue of female modesty. She showed singular dexterity in making water vessels from grass and asphaltum, a substance which is plentiful both on the island and the mainland. She seemed to recognise various appliances of civilisation. She died about seven weeks after reaching the mainland, partly from dysentery, brought on by eating fruits and vegetables. Padre Gonzalez, the superior of the mission of Santa Barbara, has sent her dress of shagreen and her baskets and implements to Rome, to the Museum of the Propaganda.
