Mr J. A. Crin, the talented tenor of the Auckland Opera Company, is at present on a visit to the Thames, making arrangements for the appearance of the company here next week in three operas, which have so greatly delighted the people of Auckland for some time past.

The No. 3 Company Thames Scottish Battalion, which is located at Ohinemuri, halloled for choice of a captain commanding a few days ago, but when the hallo was taken the popular candidate was found to have more support than there were members present, and a fresh ballot is proposed to be taken. The successful officer was formerly captain of a Shortland company, No. 1 Royals.

The bridge on the Ohinemuri river at Paeora has been completed, and the approaches are nearly formed, giving the place a greatly improved appearance. The late heavy rains and floods above the wisdom of the selection, as the bridge was in no danger from the rising of the waters.

The Auckland shareholders interested in the starting of the Big Pump have deputed Messrs C. J. Stone and J. M. Clark to interview the Borough and County authorities on the question of support, desiring possession of all gold duty for that purpose. In discussing this matter we trust the local bodies will not lose sight of the claims of the Waikato-Karaka District to a share of the gold duty in any arrangement for that purpose. The following message has been received by the Borough Council:—To the Mayor and Borough Councillors of Thames.—I have the honor to forward a copy of resolution passed by the Mining Companies this day. "That it is the opinion of this meeting that the various companies interested should agree to work the pump at the 400 feet level, provided the County and Borough Councils have the duty from gold raised within certain defined limits; that the duty be guaranteed for twelve months, and the excess, if any, of duty over expenses be handed back to the councils; the proportions to be paid by each company to be fixed before commencing; that Mr Clark and myself be appointed a deputation to wait upon the councils to give effect to this matter." The deputation leave on Wednesday next, and will thank you to reply at what time you will receive them, either Wednesday evening or Thursday next.—C. J. Stone, Chairman.

It will be several days before the trains run from Palmerston to Timaru, owing to the damage to the line. Twenty piers over the Kakanui Bridge are partly destroyed.

Some interest was manifested recently in an ocean race from Wellington to London between the ships St. Leonards, Waicon, and H.M.S. Nympha. The dates of the arrival of each are given in the European mail, as follows:—St. Leonards April 15th, Nympha April 22nd, and Waicon April 25th.

The barque Letterfourde is on the berth at Lyttelton for Auckland. She has taken the place of the barquentine Swallow, which was previously announced to leave for Auckland.

A Wellington correspondent sends the following to the Herald:—There are rumours current and believed to be well founded, of very serious disagreements between Ministers as to the appointment of a successor to Mr Stout. Sir George Grey, it is said, insists on the seat in the Cabinet being given to either Mr Moss or Mr Rees, and Mr Sheehan supports him; but the other Ministers insist on a South Island man being appointed, Mr Montgomery, if possible. It is by no means improbable that things will very speedily come to an open rupture, and that there will be one more Ministerial vacancy.

The barque Alator leaves Auckland to-day for London, with a cargo valued at £37,250, consisting of 157 tons manganese, 55 casks, 1 cask salt, 2 cases whalebone, 2 cases beaver, 14 cases cottons, 3 cases ferns, 20 cases copra, 157 sacks candlenuts, 16 cases sundries, 77 ingots tin, 43 ingots lead, 6 cases curries, 1 case books, 1 case tallies, 6 pieces timber, 1400 hogs, 76 bags bones, 30 bales leather, 33 tons bark, 347 bales wool, 4587 cases gum.

The M.A. degree of the New Zealand University will be conferred on St. Clair Tishall in the Choral Hall, Auckland, by Judge Gillies, on Thursday.

Mr Stewart, the Government Engineer, proceeds to Waikato in a few days to arrange for the erection of a house at Kihikihi at the Government expense for Dewi.

The Meg Merrilies from Levuka reports all the Coolies by the ship Leonidas from Calcutta were landed on the island of Jamaica, where quarantine barracks have already been erected. Every precaution has been taken to prevent the spread of the smallpox.

The Glenelg, which arrived in Auckland from Taranaki yesterday morning, reports that during the recent gale the contractors for raising the Tump lowered her to the bottom to prevent the blocks bumping holes in the bottom. Another effort to raise her has been made, and she has been lifted twenty-four inches. A final attempt is to be made, when the contractors expect to get her up. They will then get canvas on when she floats and pump her out.

The Patua Mail says native business is the reason for Kemp and his followers being at Carlyle. They left Wanganui on Tuesday, and only left Carlyle for Paritaka on Monday. The settlers are indignant at the Government throwing money away on a useless mission to the Maoris, when they will not give even forage to the Cavalry doing active service during the past week. The Maoris wanted a settler near town on Monday to leave his house and land, saying they were his. The natives are very bountiful, and are missing in great force on the other side of the river. Tikowanga says he is determined to go on with the ploughing, but does not wish to injure the settlers, as his fight is with the Government. He did not know of the Maoris being imprisoned at New Plymouth. We expect the ploughing party to return in force, and that the Maoris will have an armed covering party. It is anticipated there will be tough work with them.

The coal obtained from the lower level of the 52nd seam of the Miranda coal mine is of a very superior quality, both as regards its capability of bearing exposure to atmosphere, and its powers as fuel. Yesterday Mr Foster's depot was visited by several leading business men, who inspected several solid blocks of coal from the new level, the largest of which weighed over 2000 lbs. Mr Foster says the coal is very suitable for engine purposes, and continues to improve in quality. Ten tons of it have been supplied to Messrs Fraser and Tyne.—Auckland Star.

The Wellington Post of June 18th says:—The manner in which the Premier met the Chamber of Commerce deputation on the Harbour Bridge question on Monday, was far from satisfactory, and contrasted badly with the manner in which some years ago Sir Julius Vogel met a similar deputation on the same subject. Of course no one expects anything definite or decided from Sir George Grey; vague generalities and words which can subsequently be shown to mean anything that is found convenient they should be interpreted as meaning, have ever been his specialty.

The ship Iverside, 583 tons register, Captain Spencer, left London for Auckland on May 3, and was off Portland on May 5. She has on board the following passengers:—Saloon—G. Way, Rev. James Apperley, Mr Crump, and S. G. Hall, Second Cabin—J. G. Sowerby, William Lambert, William H. Lambert, Anne Lambert, John S. Lambert, N. Norris, James Hill, Charles K. Russell, Mrs J. Ramsey, H. It is understood that the Governor is opposed to all the chief items of the Liberal programme, including manhood suffrage, triennial Parliaments, and the payment of members. It is even said Sir Hercules would like to see Ministers have an absolute tenure for four years.

Rew's proposals are severely criticised by the N.Z. Times. Commenting upon his proposed boundaries that journal says:—"We suppose that Manga's territory would support every Maori in New Zealand; there would be within the area nearly 100 acres for every man, woman, and child of the native race in both Islands, and more than five times that quantity for all the Maoris who could possibly avail themselves of the chance of establishing a little Maori dominion for the Maoris, an imperium in imperio."

The Buller News states:—During the examination of bankrupt George Clark, hotel-keeper, at a time when time was hanging heavily, while witnesses were "ticking off" certain items from his statement affairs, to show the Court how fast he got into debt, His Honor, inspired probably by the fact apparent that bankrupt was scarcely the man for business, said it is quite time something was done to stop the prevailing system of licensing Tom, Dick, and Harry. When a man was too inclined to do anything else, he took to hotel-keeping. These so-called hotels injured the legitimate trade. They sold bad stuff, poison everywhere that comes near them, and in the end come to ruin themselves, and leave the merchant who supplies them to suffer the loss. His Honor continued: "Mr Bowen, how many so-called hotels are there in this town?" and upon Mr Haselden remarking that they were getting weeded out, His Honor said it was a good job too, but he would not say by fire. Three or four hotels were quite sufficient for this town. On looking over the Borough returns for the West Coast he was struck with the large proportion of revenue derived from publicans' licenses, and he could not help but think that the authorities took the money and winked at the evil. He considered this system of granting licenses was holding out a premium for dishonesty of the worst character. After eliciting from the bankrupt that he had got £819 into debt at a time when his receipts were not covering expenses, His Honor continued: "I am not a Catholic, but I must say Father Heneghey has done an immense amount of good on the West Coast. If he would only come once a year, there might be some hope that the hotels would get weeded out. I have seen so much that I cannot refrain from giving expression to my views, such as they are."

Assassination continues to be on the rampage in Russia. Things must be looking decidedly unpleasant there for officials with any kind of dislike of making a hurried exit from the stage of life. Another subordinate has been killed in the usual fashion, and decorated with the usual red label setting forth that the deceased died because the Nihilists decreed it. To show how instantly the conspirators act, a curious story has just been made public, of a group of the late attempt on the life of Governor Drentin. When the General received the first of the letters which threatened him with the happy death, he glanced over it, and instantly tore it up in a rage, sarcastically saying to the officer who stood near him, "This letter, which threatens me with death, has not even the merit of being grammatically written or correctly spelled." In the course of the next hour or so General Drentin received another letter, threatening his life again. This epistle concluded by saying that "the writers, having been informed that the General had destroyed the preceding letter on account of its bad spelling and defective style, ventured to forward him a notification of his sentence to death by the revolutionary committee, which, so far as punctuation and literary merit were concerned, would, they hope, leave nothing to be desired." The next morning, the General was shot at, and escaped by a miracle. It would seem as though the Nihilists were possessed of a by no means inconsiderable amount of sarcasmic humor.—Bay of Plenty Times.

At the West End of London an artificial and elaborate system of fraud has been discovered as carried on by a middle-aged man, who gives the name of Vernon Montgomery, and has passed himself off sometimes as a baronet and sometimes as a vicar. His confederates are a group of 20 years of age, styling himself Ethel Vivian, who seems to have led anything but a respectable life, although she tried to pass herself off as a friendless orphan, who had successfully resisted the many temptations to which she had been exposed since she came to London. This precious pair had inserted advertisements in all the leading newspapers in the shape of heart-touching appeals from R. V. to V. H. "I entreat you," she said, "to help me in this time of deepest trial. I, and my friendless, I can look to no one but you for assistance. By the memory of the past I implore your aid, as I know not what to do. My last shilling is expended on this advertisement. Remember me at this season of happiness and reunion," for these advertisements appeared about Christmas and New Year time. A great number of persons who could not have imagined themselves to be the "V. H." to whom the advertisement is addressed answered it and sent her money. Unfortunately for her she consented to meet a young man in the city, and he offered to help her to get employment. But Miss Ethel Vivian did not want honest work, and made various excuses, until this young gentleman began to suspect her, and after putting the police on her track had the courage to appear before the magistrate as one of the principal witnesses against her. It came out in the course of his cross examination that he had made notes of their conversation, but his records were in the Japanese language, which is about the oddest thing ever heard of in the way of diaries.

Dr. Carver, the celebrated American Knight of the Trigger, was born at Saratoga Springs, New York, on May 7th, 1840. In 1841 his father emigrated to the Far West, settling down where Minniepota now stands. In the autumn of that year the Indians made a raid on the Carver household, and in the subsequent heat of the family, murdered Mrs Carver and her young daughter, and carried off the present subject of our sketch, who remained with the Indians some years, and became very proficient in their wild sports, after which he made his escape. Since his arrival in England he has offered to shoot anyone with a rifle from £100 to £200 a shot. At the Welsh Harp he was visiting some exhibition shooting, and the following account is from Bells Life:—"Judging from his exploits at the Welsh Harp, it is certainly true to one on his hitting with a rifle ball a small coin of the realm—a threepenny piece—when thrown in the air, and it may be added that Carver offers to bet £100 that he hits an apple held upon the end of a penknife by a man riding at full gallop at 30 yards distance, knocking the object to pieces, and this with a rifle of very small bore. Rapid firing is evidently his particular study, and it is a noteworthy fact that he keeps both eyes open when sighting, and never fails to drop the stock of his piece to the hip after each shot. Using a Winchester repeating rifle, which, when loaded, contained 16 cartridges, his first undertaking was to break 73 out of 100 glass balls with rifle bullets, and, in spite of the boisterous wind and falling snow, he succeeded in a marvellously short time, 59 out of 100. In order to display his rapidity in firing, a glass ball was thrown to the height of about 20 feet, and having discharged his rifle twice while the ball was in the air, knocked the ball to atoms with the third shot long before it reached the ground. He then ordered his sable attendant to go 40 feet off, and throw some glass balls sick at his head, and as rapidly as it could be done. Amidst great excitement the champion scattered them one by one, with the greatest ease, at a distance of about a dozen feet from the shooter's face, at which "dankie" evidently aimed, and with astonishing accuracy.

If we add to the 532 Zulus whose bodies were buried or found in the bush by the garrison of Rorke's Drift, says the Army and Navy Gazette, about twice as many wounded, of whom one-half would probably die, we arrive at the result that 1000 or 1200 men were killed or died of their wounds in the attack on the place—a fact which testifies to the gallantry of the defence and the courage and obstinacy of the assailants. The reports which have been circulated that Major Bromhead was not reported favourably upon by the subalterns are unfounded.

Our P.D., on reading the latest telegram from Wellington detailing the scene in the Cabinet, eagerly indicated that Grey had overhauled himself.

TERRIBLE GALES AND LOSS OF LIFE AT TIMARU.—WRECK OF THE 'AKABAR' AND 'FELICIA'.

DROWNING OF CAPTAIN AND MRS WATTS.

'ADVERTISER' SPECIAL WIRE.

(PER PRESS AGENCY.)

Timaru, Tuesday. The message sent last night, giving particulars of wrecks and floods, was crowded out, and the following full particulars arrived shortly after four o'clock on Monday morning:—

The brigantine 'Akabar,' which was riding almost head off the 'Clan Campbell,' parted her first anchor and drifted rapidly in among the fleet of vessels to the north-west. Another anchor was let go, but this also parted, and with her chains hanging from her bows she drifted in a most extraordinary manner to leeward. She nearly as possible fouled the barque 'Tere Annie' at the bow. An attempt was made to direct her on to the beach in Caroline Bay, but the chains hanging over her bows rendered this impossible, and the terrible wind and sea forced her towards the Wash Dyke. On the vessel becoming unmanageable, search was made for rockets or blue lights, but nothing was obtainable with which to make distress signals, and she drifted to destruction in the darkness.

No light whatever was shown, and the watchman at Rocket Brigade Station was in utter ignorance that a vessel was in danger. Her crew consisted of Captain Watts, J. Synham (the mate), a passenger named Wright, Ned the boatswain, a boy named James, the cook, and Charles Dainton, Bartley, Humphreys, and a Frenchman named James Naglett. The surname of the boy is not known. One of the men was saved from the 'Melrose' in September last year. Mrs Watts, the wife of the captain, was also on board. When some distance from the beach the vessel, according to the statement of the saved, struck and opened out; about the same time the captain was carried overboard and was never afterwards seen. The vessel drifted down until she struck the beach shortly before 5 o'clock, about four miles from the town. Directly she touched the beach she began to break up, and in a few minutes was split open from stem to stern. A life buoy was given to Mrs Watts, who stuck to the vessel for some time in company with the boatswain, and when last seen she still had hold of it. Cook, boatswain, and boy, soon disappeared, while the mate, the passenger (Wright), and Bartley, Humphreys, Dainton, and Naglett (seamen), after being washed up and down the beach for some time, got on dry land. Bartley and Naglett were terribly bruised by floating timber. The seamen who succeeded in getting ashore crouched on the shingles, and braved the wild and bitterly cold elements as best they could until day broke out, when they made for Mr Delfield's house. There they were most hospitably received, well fed, and supplied with dry clothing, two of them being without rag or garment on them when they landed. In the afternoon they all came into town, Bartley and Naglett going to the hospital in consequence of their severe injuries, and the rest being provided with snug quarters in the Moravia hotel. What makes the death of Captain and Mrs Watts still more sad is the fact that they had only been married some 7 or 8 months, and were both young in years. The 'Akabar' was an American brigantine, built some six years since, and was the sole property of Captain Gielvrie. She was not insured. She arrived here on Monday last from Newcastle with a cargo of coal, consigned to B. Smith. Three hundred tons of cargo were still on board when the 'Akabar' came ashore, but they were fully insured. The vessel is a complete wreck and her timbers and fittings strew the beach for miles on both sides of her. The topsail schooner 'Poliana,' came to grief through no fault of her own or the roadstead. Her bowsprit was carried away about 8 a.m. by the barquentine 'George Noble,' while the latter was trying to make an offing, and she thus became disabled. She ran gallantly, however, until about noon, when her captain (Munro), finding his cargo was shifting, and fearing she would capsize, shifted the anchor, and steered direct for the beach at Wainiro Lagoon, where he ran her ashore and left, dry her crew being landed by means of a line thrown on board by the Rocket Brigade party, who were ready to receive them. The 'Poliana' so far has sustained no injury whatever on the beach, and but for the fact of her bowsprit having been carried away no doubt she would still be afloat. She is a wooden vessel, 74 tons registered, built at Manning River in 1874, and is owned by Mr Henry Aitken. She carried a crew of five. It is not known whether she is insured or not. At the time of her stranding she had on board 200 sacks of wheat for Wellington, shipped by J. and L. Meek. Four other vessels were in considerable danger for some time, but in the afternoon they got away owing to a land breeze springing up. The English barque 'Clan Campbell' rode out the terrible gale magnificently, thanks to being well found in cables. The vessels which ran to sea are the barquentines, 'George Noble,' and 'Annie Bow,' the brigantines, 'Seabird' and 'Oceola,' and the steamers 'Star of the South' and 'Beautiful Star.' This afternoon the bodies of Captain and Mrs Watts, and the boatswain and the cook were found, but that of the boy is still missing. The body of McKinnon, who was drowned in a boat belonging to the 'Beautiful Star,' on Saturday, has also been recovered. All the bodies are marked and terribly bruised.

Fearful floods occurred in this district yesterday and to-day. A heavy rain has been falling from Saturday morning till Sunday afternoon, and off and on to-day. Yesterday part of the Temuka and Washdyke townships were several feet in water, and boats had to be sent from Timaru to take people out of the houses; numerous narrow escapes are reported. The whole of the level country was one sheet of water, but during the night the jagged burst, and to-day the river has greatly subsided. Railway traffic is entirely suspended, several of the bridges having been washed away, as well as a great deal of the formation. Traffic will not be resumed for several days. There are no means of any sort of communication but by telegraph. Every effort is being made to repair the railway line, but the weather is still threatening. No loss of life by the floods is reported, but there has been great loss of stock in the Waimea district. Messrs Blackett, Blair, and Lowe, railway engineers, are here at present, and are in active communication with other parts of the island.

DIORAMA OF THE AMERICAN WAR.

DESPITE the drizzling rain which fell last night, there was a crowded attendance at the Academy of Music to witness the second appearance here of Baines's magnificent series of vivid pictures of the leading events of the great civil war which prevailed in America many years ago. The auditory appeared greatly to appreciate the artistic scenes placed before their view, judging from the interest that was manifested in each picture. Mr Harry Stanley is a lecturer of no mean ability, and were it not for him a great deal of the interest of the entertainment would be lost. He elucidated the scenes in a very effective manner, and in addition sang several songs in a style which secured for him considerable applause. The mechanical effects were excellent, and altogether the exhibition was a graphic outline of the chief incidents in connection with the war. The entertainment closed with the distribution of a number of useful and ornamental gifts among the audience, the chief presents (a tea and coffee service and a silver watch) falling to the lot of Mr Thomas Crankshaw, of Bagnall's mills, and Mr Lynch, jun., of Richmond-street, respectively. To-night will be the last appearance here of the Diorama of the American War, but to-morrow night a new diorama will be produced.

MINING MATTERS.

MOANATARI.—For the last few days the manager has had men employed in stripping No. 3 reef at the tunnel level east of Williams's tribute boundary, and consequently no quartz has been broken down either to-day or to-morrow. The country through which the south cross-cut on the tunnel level is being put in is very wet. There is no change to note in any of the other workings. The tributors, McDonnell and party, have finished a crushing of 4 tons of general dirt for the yield of 302s 9dwt gold.

CUZE.—The manager finding that the cross-lead, on which he has been driving for some time past on the No. 1 level, has taken a turn and runs into the Red Queen ground sooner than he expected, has suspended operations on the company's account, and has let a block of ground in the Red Queen ground to a party of tributors who will work on the same lode, and drive towards the Cur boundary, so that it will save the company the trouble and expense of prospecting the lode, and if it should turn out to be payable they can start to work upon it at once.

WAIOTARI.—The monthly cleaning up of this company took place yesterday, with the result that 12503s of melted gold were obtained. 110 tons were crushed.

HEAD BATTERY.—For the past few days the Caledonian Company has been employing ten head of stampers at this battery, and the Albion Company five, but the latter commenced crushing with ten head again last evening.

KURANGI HILL TRIBUTE.—James and party, who have been working on the same lode from which Jenkins and party are getting such good returns, crushed 4 tons of quartz at the company's battery for the poor yield of 202s 11dwt melted gold. The party intend to give the block up, and have already taken another piece of ground in another part of the mine.

ALBUENA.—Vercoe and party crushed about 12 loads of quartz for the return of 1202s 12dwt melted gold.

POLICE COURT.—YESTERDAY.

(Before W. FRASER, Esq., B.M.)

DRUNKENNESS.—Elizabeth Birdwood appeared on a charge of having been drunk and disorderly last evening.—She pleaded guilty, and was fined 20s and costs.

A RUNAWAY.—Michael Sheehy, charged with leaving home and unruly conduct, and remanded from Friday last, was again brought before the Bench, and his father applied for his dismissal, promising to take him away.—Granted.

WIFE DESERTION.—Douglas Fox Kent, a young man, was charged with deserting his wife Charlotte, and leaving her without means of support.—Mr Brassey appeared for the complainant.—Bridence was taken, which showed that the wife had been subject to cruel treatment at defendant's hands. Medical testimony was also adduced in support of the charge

A CASTAWAY.

IN a recent number of the San Francisco Call an account is given of an Indian woman who was accidentally abandoned on San Nicolas Island, off the coast of Southern California, and spent 18 years alone there before she was rescued. The fact of her existence was discovered by a man who went from the mainland to hunt for otters, and who found footprints sunk deeply in the ground. He was unable to follow up these indications till nearly three years, when one of a party who accompanied him came suddenly upon the object of their search. She was in a small circular enclosure made of brush-wood, about five feet high, and six feet in diameter, with a small opening on one side. She was clothed with a garment made of skins of the shag, a species of duck that can neither walk nor fly. This garment reached almost to her ankles when she stood erect. She was sitting cross-legged skinning seal-blubber with a rude knife made of a piece of hoop-iron driven into a piece of wood. There was no covering on her head, except a thick matted mass of hair, of yellowish brown colour, probably owing to exposure to the sun and the weather; it was short, as if the ends had rotted off. There was some wild dogs on the island, a few of which kept near her, and seemed to regard her as a mistress. She had lived on a plant resembling cabbage, called by Californians palo santo, and a root known by the name of corcomite, also blubber of the various kinds of seals, &c. She had a rude apparatus for catch-also blubber of the various kinds of seals, &c. She had a rude apparatus for catching shellfish, and strong fishing-lines made of seal sinews, which seemed to indicate that she fished in the ocean. The expression of her face was pleasing. her features were regular, her complexion much fairer and her form more symmetrical than that of the Indian women on the adjoining mainland. Some suspect that she belonged to a tribe much farther north. She could not understand anything said to her in any of the Indian dialects of South California, but she had a wonderful capacity for conversing by signs. She retained all her teeth, but they were worn low, supposed to be due to her chewing tough and hard articles of food. Her age appeared to be about 50 years. She bowed to all who came near her, greeting them with a smile. She freely accompanied her discoverers to their vessel. She showed singular dexterity in making water-vessels from grass and asphaltum, a substance which is plentiful both on the island and the mainland. She seemed to recognise various appliances of civilisation. She died about seven weeks after reaching the mainland, partly from the effects of a fall, partly from dysentery, brought on by eating fruits and vegetables. Padre Gonzalez, the superior of the mission of Santa Barbara, has sent her dress of shagskins, her basket and implements, to Rome, to the Museum of the Propaganda.
