GOVERNMENT LIFE INSURANCE DEPARTMENT.

ESTABLISHED 1870.

Policy Guaranteed by the State.

LOW PREMIUMS.

LARGE BONUSES.

The first policy issued, No. 1 for £100, is still in existence, and has had three bonuses allotted to it, viz.:

In 1870, £36 or 24 2s. per cent. per annum.

In 1875, £18, or 21 4s. per cent. per annum.

In 1880, £27, or 21 16s. per cent. per annum.

The above is an actual case, and shows that the rate of bonus increased at each division. The premiums in force at the time this policy was issued were not calculated to yield any bonuses, and the higher rates now charged should therefore give still more satisfactory results.

ENO'S 'FRUIT SALT'

Is the best Remedy for all these.

It is Pleasant, Cooling, Health-Giving, Refreshing and invigorating.

You cannot overstate its great value in keeping the Blood Pure and Free from Disease.

"DEAR SIR,—I am very pleased to record my knowledge of the great efficacy of your 'FRUIT SALT' in my case. A friend of mine, who had three grand-children laid up with this complaint, administered frequent doses, with the result that all the children pulled through wonderfully in a short time, for which the mother was exceedingly grateful to you. For myself and family, your 'FRUIT SALT' is our universal remedy. Bordening on years as I am, I find a bottle of ENO'S 'FRUIT SALT' and a few of ENO'S 'VEGETABLE MOTES' the greatest boon in the uphill battle of this life."

"I am, Dear Sir, yours truly, A CITY MAN."

THE SECRET OF SUCCESS.—STERLING HONESTY OF PURPOSE: WITHOUT IT LIFE IS A SHAM! A new invention is keeping before the public, and commands success. A score of abominable imitations are immediately introduced by the unscrupulous, who, in copying the original, closely enough to deceive the public, and yet not so exactly as to infringe upon legal rights, exercise an ingenuity that, employed in an original channel, could not fail to secure reputation and profit."

Caution.—Examine each bottle, and see that the Capsule is marked ENO'S 'FRUIT SALT.' Without it you have been imposed on by a worthless imitation.

SOLD BY ALL CHEMISTS.

Smuggling Tobacco.

(By Telegraph—Own Correspondent.)

AUCKLAND, July 11. The Customs Department is keeping a sharp eye upon persons who are calculated to smuggle in small parcels of tobacco from vessels in port. Two cases were dealt with at the Police Court this morning. The first defendant was a Chinese named George Altie. He was charged with having committed a breach of the Customs Laws Consolidation Act, 1882, by having removed 5 lbs of uncustomed tobacco, valued at 30s, from the barque Crescent with intent to defraud the revenue of duty. Mr. Alexander Rose, Collector of Customs, appeared for the prosecution, and as defendant pleaded guilty, he claimed the penalty of three times the value of the tobacco. The Bench accordingly inflicted the fine with costs.

Robert Robertson was likewise charged with having removed 2 lb of uncustomed tobacco, valued at 12s, from the Duke of Westminster. Prisoner pleaded guilty, and was fined 36s and costs.

Charitable Aid Board.

The ordinary monthly meeting of the Thames and Coromandel United District Charitable Aid Board was held last evening, when there were present: Messrs. Koofted (chairman), Renshaw, Killgour, and Patridge.

The minutes of the previous meeting were read and confirmed.

CORRESPONDENCE.

A considerable amount of correspondence was dealt with.

Apology.—A telegram was received from Mr. Colebrook (Coromandel) apologising for his absence, owing to the state of the weather.

Charitable Aid.—A circular giving the outline of a scheme dealing with the question of the way to distribute charitable aid to the bulk of those who are now in receipt of public, and private charity, in the colony, was received from Mr. Horace F. Hastings, Dunedin, and was referred to the General Purposes Committee.

Chinese Contribution.—A cheque was received from the Ohinemuri County Council for £8 13s 11d, being the Council's contribution to the Charitable Aid Board for the month of May, 1892.

Support of Children.—A letter was received from Richard and Jessie Douglas, of Tairā, stating that they had two children in their charge, named Daniel and Jessie McSherry, the boy was 5 years and the girl 9 years of age. They had been left there by their father, Daniel McSherry, 18 months ago. He promised to pay 5s a week for each child, making a total of £39 for the maintenance for 18 months, but all McSherry had paid was £11, leaving a balance of £28. They had recently heard that McSherry had been sent to the Auckland Hospital in a desolate condition, where he died on the 28th June, and they could not afford to keep the children without assistance. They asked that the Board would consider the matter and see on what condition they could keep the children. A footnote was also attached from Mr. F. G. Edwards, J.P., Tairā, vouching for the correctness of the foregoing statement, and asking that some action might be taken by the Board in the matter. The letter was referred to the General Purposes Committee with power to act.

Balance Sheet.—The Balance sheet of the Charitable Aid Board from 1st April, 1891, to 31st March, 1892, having been audited by the Government Auditor and found correct, was received and adopted.

Reports.—The usual reports were received and adopted.

Treasurer's Statement.—The Treasurer's statement for the past month showed the receipts to be £269 5s 2d; expenditure, £160 0s 7d, leaving a Cr. balance at the Bank of £109 4s 7d.

Accounts.—The usual accounts having been passed for payment the meeting terminated.

With Apologies to the Shades of Longfellow.

Under Britannia's spreading oak
The grand old woodman stands;
A presentation axe he wields
With large and shrewd hands;
But the onslaught of his cruel arms
As yet the tree withstands.

His hair is white, and lank, and long,
His collar none can span;
His brow is wet with heavy sweat—
He chops down all he can;
He won't look duty in the face,
But he'll talk with any man.

Week in, week out, from morn till night,
You can hear his speeches how
You can hear him wag his ceaseless
tongue,
Dreary, and loud, and slow.

As the sexton's song on the village bell,
When the evening sun is low,
The children of his rebel school
Crowd round his open door;
They love to see his swelling gorge,
And hear his blatant roar,
And catch the myriad words that fly
Like chaff from a threshing floor.

He goes on Sunday to the Church,
And sits among his boys;
He hears the parson pray and preach—
He hears his own loved voice
Reading out the daily lessons,
And it makes his heart rejoice.

It sounds to him like an Angel's voice,
Singing in Paradise.
And reminds him he will talk no more
When in the grave he lies,
And with his collar and his wipers
A tear out of his eyes.

Talking—praising—promising,
Onward through life he goes;
Each morning sees some task begun,
Long years don't see it close;
Too much attempted, nothing done,
How can he find repose.

COLONEL FOX.

(By Telegraph—Press Association.)

WELLINGTON, July 11. COLONEL FOX will leave here shortly for Hawkes Bay, Gisborne, and Auckland to inspect the forces.

THE ISLE OF SKULLS.

On the lonely, wind-swept island of San Nicolas, eighty miles off the coast of Ventura County (says an American paper), where as far back as the memory of man runs, hundreds of white skeletons have dotted the valleys and hill-sides, local archaeologists are now busy gathering the relics of a strange, extinct race. The island is ten miles long and oval in shape, being four miles across at the widest part. Strange utensils of serpentine, sandstone, and steatite are found there among the human bones, and the island and its erstwhile inhabitants have a history so curious that it is difficult of comprehension. In 1835 the padres of Santa Barbara, learning that there were but sixteen of the strange Indian race then living there, determined to rescue them from the island. They went over in a sloop and succeeded, as they thought, in getting all on board. At the last moment an Indian woman returned for her child, and one of the frequent storms of the Channel Islands springing up, the sloop was driven away without her. The sloop went on the rocks of Point Conception and all on board were lost. Sixteen years later Captain George Nidever and two men went from the coast on a sloop to hunt otter off San Nicolas. On landing, they were, like Crusoe, astonished to discover human footprints in the sand. They saw no one, however, and a storm compelled them to put to sea. It was two years thereafter that the adventurous captain, revolving in his mind the sight of the footprints in the uncanny island, determined to go and discover and bring over the lonely woman of whom he had vaguely heard. Men accompanied him, and at length they saw on the surf-beaten shore a woman with long, wavy hair, dressed in a queer garb of coloured bird skins, and scraping with a bone knife the blubber from a seal. They surrounded and approached her stealthily, and although suddenly confronted, she did not appear in the least afraid, but smiled, and then, falling on her knees, prayed to the sun. The wild woman offered no objection when by signs she was made to understand that she was to go with them in the boat. They reached Santa Barbara across the rough sea, and the first thing the Indian woman saw was Dr S. L. Shaw, now eighty years old and yet living there, riding a horse. She had never seen or heard of anything like it, and thought the man and horse were one, and she knelt on the shore and offered her devotions to it. Two weeks afterwards the last inhabitant of rock ribbed, tempest tossed San Nicolas died from eating food to which she was unaccustomed, furnished by her rescuers, and the curtain fell on her race for ever. Wild dogs had eaten her child. Her dress of red and blue feathers, a wonderful creation of barbaric baubles, was sent to the Pope of Rome. Relic hunters have gathered mortars, pestles, ollas, toy steatite canoes, and other curious things there for years past, and shipped them to various Eastern and European universities. Skeletons and part of skeletons have also been collected in large numbers, but to-day the bones of thousands of Indians are scattered about there. Some lie face down indicating that they have fallen in battle. There are so many human relics that San Nicolas is known as the Isle of Skulls. "The lonely island, whose highest part is but 1040 feet above the sea," said a resident of Ventura recently, "is noted for the high artistic class of many of its relics. Had the woman resented, then fifty-two years old, not died, a story passing strange would no doubt have been told of the race so long hemmed in by the waste of waters about. As it is, much of the story is shrouded in mystery for ever."

THE ISLE OF SKULLS

On the lonely, wind swept island of San Nicolas, eighty miles off the coast of Ventura County (says an American paper), where as far back as the memory of man runs, hundreds of white skeletons have dotted the valleys and hillsides, local archaeologists are now busy gathering the relics of a strange, extinct race. The island is ten miles long and oval in shape, being four miles across at the widest part. Strange utensils of serpentine, sandstone, and steatite are found there among the human bones, and the island and its erstwhile inhabitants have a history so curious that it is difficult of comprehension. In 1835 the padres of Santa Barbara, learning that there were but sixteen of the strange Indian race then living there, determined to rescue them from the island. They went over in a sloop and succeeded, as they thought, in getting all on board. At the last moment an Indian woman returned for her child, and one of the frequent storms of the Channel Islands springing up, the sloop was driven away without her. The sloop went on the rocks of Point Conception and all on board were lost. Sixteen years later Captain George Nidever and two men went from the coast on a sloop to hunt otter off San Nicolas. On finding, they were, like Crusoe, astonished to discover human footprints in the sand. They saw no one, however, and a storm compelled them to put to sea. It was two years thereafter that the adventurous captain, revolving in his mind the sight of the footprints in the uncanny island, determined to go and discover and bring over the lone woman of whom he had vaguely heard. Men accompanied him, and at length they saw on the surf beaten shore a woman with long, tawny hair, dressed in a queer garb of coloured bird skins, and scraping with a bone knife the blubber from a seal. They surrounded and approached her stealthily, and although suddenly confronted, she did not appear in the least afraid, but smiled, and then, falling on her knees, prayed to the sun. The wild woman offered no objection when by signs she was made to understand that she was to go with them in the boat. They reached Santa Barnara across the rough sea, and the first thing the Indian woman saw was Dr S. L. Shaw, now eighty years old and yet living there, riding a horse. She had never seen or heard of anything like it, and thought the man and horse were one, and she knelt on the shore and offered her devotions to it. Two weeks afterwards the last inhabitant of rock ribbed, tempest tossed San Nicolas died from eating food to which she was un- accustomed, furnished by her rescuers, and the curtain fell on her race for ever. Wild dogs had eaten her child. Her dress of red and blue feathers, a wonder- ful creation of barbaric bards, was sent to the Pope of Rome. Relic hunters have gathered mortars, pestles, ollas, toy steatite canoes, and other curious things there for years past, and shipped them to various Eastern and Euro- pean universities. Skeletons and part of skeletons have also been collected in large numbers, but to-day the bones of thousands of Indians are scattered about there. Some lie face down indicating that they have fallen in battle. There are so many human relics that San Nicolas is known as the Isle of Skulls. "The lonely island, whose highest part is but 1040 feet above the sea," said a resident of Ventura recently, "is noted for the high artistic class of many of its relics. Had the woman rescued, then fifty-two years old, not died, a story passing strange would no doubt have been told of the race so long hemmed in by the waste of waters about. As it is, much of the story is shrouded in mystery for ever."
