Blaze at Ranch Home Believed Fire Bug's Work

REDLANDS, Dec. 27.—The fire department was called to the house on the ranch of Sherman Hart, three miles west of the city, last night by a fire which, it is believed, was started by some fire bug. So far police have been unable to get any trace of the person who started the fire.

The blaze started in a corner of the first floor, destroying the roof of the porch. The flames ate their way under the floor of the second story. The clouds of dense smoke which filled the rooms of the closed structure made the task of the fire fighters exceedingly difficult. Chemicals were applied and hoses were connected from a near-by well.

The porch was badly burned. Damage to the interior, it is believed, will be minor.

One of the reasons for the "shrinkage" in the number of licenses issued is said to be found in County Clerk D. F. Hunt's strict observance of the marriage license law. LITTLE GIRL HEROINE IN SAVING BABY

Four Year-Old Child Drags Small Sister from Danger But Gets Broken Leg

PASADENA, Dec. 27.—Four-year-old Elaine Stenberg of 1238 North Catalina avenue, showed such heroism in saving the life of her baby sister this afternoon that she bids fair to become the youngest "Carnegie medal heroine" in the country. Although her own leg was broken, Elaine is happy that "baby is safe."

With her 3-year-old sister, Phyllis, as a rear passenger, Elaine was peddling her tricycles along the sidewalk when an automobile backed from a driveway at 830 East Washington street and threatened to crush the tiny travelers. Elaine saw the danger first and climbing from her "bike," started to run when she saw Phyllis sprawled on the sidewalk in the path of the car's wheels. She rushed back, clutched her sister's dress and pulled her out of the way.

The "big sister" then tried to save herself, but the heavy car passed over and broke her right leg. The children, daughters of Mr. and Mrs. A. P. Stenberg, were rushed to the Emergency Hospital where they were treated by Chief Surgeon C. C. Troennesser. While splints were placed around Elaine's leg, Phyllis tried with considerable success to comfort "Laney."

Mrs. Addie A. Peck of 880 East Washington street, driver of the automobile, brought the girls to the hospital. She told police officers that she did not see the children until after the accident.

EDUCATOR SUE FOR DIVORCE

Mrs. Jantzen of Colton Files Against Mate After Collecting Heart Balm

SAN BERNARDINO, Dec. 27.—As a sequel to her $50,000 love piracy suit against Mrs. Ethel W. Bailey, her former neighbor, Mrs. Viola Jantzen of Colton today filed an action in Superior Court for divorce from George H. Jantzen, former president of the San Bernardino Valley Junior College.

The allegation of affection suit was settled out of court a month ago, Mrs. Bailey paying Mrs. Jantzen $12,000. In her suit for divorce Mrs. Jantzen charges mental cruelty, asserting that her husband "signed his position as president of the junior college, left and deserted the plaintiff (Mrs. Jantzen) and left Colton and has ever since remained away, leaving his wife to face the stigma of accusation and reports alone and unaided without any explanation from Mr. Jantzen."

Mr. and Mrs. Bailey were divorced here June 22, last, and the husband made a $50,000 property settlement upon his wife when the divorce was granted. This same settlement was the basis of the subsequent settlement of the $50,000 "love balm" case brought against Mrs. Bailey by Mrs. Jantzen, who charged that her former neighbor and intimate friend had pilfered her husband's love while maintaining friendly neighborly relations.

Both the Jantzen and Bailey families are well known in the county, especially prominent in the San Bernardino Valley. Jantzen and his wife moved to Colton fifteen years ago when the professor became principal of the union high school of that city.

GUARD SET ON CITRUS GROVES

Picket Lines to Watch For Suspicious Characters. Growers, and Packing-house Men to Prevent Theft.

ONTARIO, Dec. 27.—Orange growers and packing-house officials today opened a campaign to prevent wholesale theft of oranges and lemons in this district. The navel crop is rapidly becoming ripe and packing-houses are being made ready to receive the fruit, but before picking starts local and county authorities are drawing their battle lines against fruit thieves who in past years have made large hauls from growers.

Growers are warned to be on the lookout for men loitering about the highways, eyeing groves. They are "spotters" who during the day locate groves where fruit is being picked and left in stacked boxes, waiting to be taken to packing-houses. At night the "spotter" and his companions load the stacked fruit on trucks and drive away with it. Growers now are making every effort to have all fruit moved to packing-houses during the day. However, night patrols guard groves and question all suspicious characters near them.

Night guards also patrol the groves to prevent thieves stripping trees as they have done in the past.

The latter car is said to have been overturned, pinning Henderson and his companion, a 14-year-old youth, beneath. Pursued by a machine driven by Clyde Henderson, father of the injured youth, Rodriguez was overtaken and halted on North Grange street, where he was taken into custody by Sgt. John Stocker of the police department.

Three bottles of beer, it is asserted, were secured from the machine. Rodriguez asserts that he was not driving the machine at the time of the accident. He also disavowed ownership of the beer.

Attorney Ray Hodge of San Bernardino is counsel for the defendant while Dep. Atty. C. O. Thompson is representing the prosecution.

FISH-HOOK HAS SAD HISTORY

Crude Instrument Loaned to Santa Barbara Museum For Years Used by Indian Woman Crusoe

SANTA BARBARA, Dec. 27.—A fish hook laboriously fashioned by hand with a stone implement from a segment of abalone shell, said to have been used in providing the necessities of life by the Indian woman who, history relates, lived alone on San Nicholas Island for eighteen years, has been loaned to the Santa Barbara Museum of Natural History by Mr. and Mrs. John F. Rock. Rock procured the fish hook, which is about half an inch in diameter and shaped much like the figure 5, from John Ogan, in whose family it was treasured for more than sixty years and who obtained the treasure from Capt. Nidever, who rescued the woman from her long stay alone on the barren island, it is said.

History says that when the Indians were being taken from the Santa Barbara Islands by government order, since they were unable to obtain a living there, the woman was among those on board the ship being brought to this city. When a long way from the island two men discovered that her baby had been overlooked and was not on the ship. The captain refused to return to the island for the child, so the mother leaped overboard and swam back to the island and the boat with the other Indians on board, came on to this port. After a time the incident was forgotten. Eighteen years later Capt. Nidever in cruising about the island, found human tracks in the sand, which he investigated, since the island was not supposed to be inhabited, and found the Indian woman who had survived the eighteen years without human companionship, her baby having died.
